WISCONSIN'S BOSS BAD BOY.

[Peck's Sun. ]

" What was the Health Officer doing over to your house this morning?" said the grocery man to the bad boy, as the youth was firing frozen potatoes at the man who collects g arbage in the alley.

"Oh, they are searching for sewer gas and such things, and they have plumbers and other society experts till you can't rest and I come away for fear they would find the sewer gas and warm my jacket. Say, do you think it is right, when anything smells awfully, to always lay it to a boy ?"

"Well, in nine cases out of ten they hit it right, but what do you think is the trouble over to your house, honest?"

"S-h-h! Now don't breathe a word of it to a living soul, or I am a dead boy. You see I was over to the dairy fair at the exposition building on Saturday night, and when they were breaking up me and my chum helped to carry the boxes of cheese and firkins of butter, and a cheese man gave each of us a piece of limburger cheese, wrapped up in tin foil. Sunday morning I opened my piece, and it made me tired. Oh, it was the offulest smell I ever heard of, except the smell when they found a tramp who hung himself in the woods on the Whitefish Bay Road, and had been dead three weeks. It was just like an old back number funeral. Pa and ma were just getting ready to go to church, and I cut off a piece of cheese and put it in the inside pocket of pa's vest, and I put another in the lining of ma's muff, and they went to church. I went to church, too, and sat on a back seat with my chum, looking just as pious as though I was taking up a collection. The church was pretty warm, and by the time they got up to sing the first hymn pa's cheese began to smell a match against ma's cheese. Pa held one side of the hymn book and ma held the other, and pa he always sings for all that is out, and when he braced himself and sang 'Just as I am, ' ma thought pa's voice was tinctured with billiousness and she looked at him, and hunched him and told him to stop singing and breathe through his nose, cause his breath was enough to stop a clock. Pa stopped singing, and turned around kind of cross towards ma, and then he smelled ma's cheese, and he turned his head the other a pious and God-fearing man, a teacher way, and said 'whew,' and they didn't in the Sunday school, and that he is so sing any more, but they looked at each other as though they smelled frowy. When they sat down they sat as far apart as they could get, and pa sat next to a woman who used to be a nurse in a hospital, and when she smelled pa's cheese she looked at him as though she thought he had the small-pox, and she held her handkerchief to her nose. The man at the other end of the pew that ma sat near, he was a stranger from Racine who belongs to our church, and he looked at ma sort of queer, and after the minister prayed and they got up to sing again, the man took his hat and went out, and when he came by me he said something in a whisper about a female glue factory. Well, sir, before the sermon was over everybody in that part of the church had their handkerchiefs to their noses, and they looked at pa and ma scandalous, and the two ushers they came around in the pews looking for a dog, and when the minister got over his sermon, and wiped the prespiration off his face, he said he would like to have the trustees of the church stay after meeting, as there was business of importance to transact. He said the question of proper ventilation and sewerage for the church would be brought up, and that he presumed the congregation noticed this morning that the church was unusually full of sewer gas. He said he had spoken of the matter before, and expected it would be attended to before this. He said he was a meek and humble follower of the lamb, and was willing to cast his lot wherever good thing, but no person could enjoy religion as well in a fat rending establishment as he could in a flower garden, and as far as he was concerned he had got enough. Everybody looked at every-body else, and pa looked at ma as though he knew where the sewer gas came from, and ma looked at pa real mad, and me and my chum lit out, and I went home and distributed my cheese all around. I put a slice in ma's bureau drawer, down under her underclothes, and a piece in the spare room under the bed, and a piece in the bath room in the soap dish, and a slice in the album on the parlor table, and a piece in the library in a book, and I went to the dining room and put some under the table, and dropped a piece under the range in the kitchen. I tell you the house was loaded for bears. Ma came home from church first, and when I asked where pa was, she said she hoped he had gone to walk around a block to air hisself. Pa came home to dinner, and when he got a smell of the house he opened all the doors, and ma put a comfortable around her shoulders and told pa he was a disgrace to civilization. She tried to get pa to drink some carbolic acid. Pa finally convinced ma that it was not him, and then they decided that it was the house that smelled so, as well as the church, and all Sunday afternoon they went visiting, and this morning pa went down to the health office and got the Inspector of Nuisances to come up to the house, and when he smelled around a spell he said there was dead rats in the main sewer pipe, and they sent for plumbers, and ma

Therefore be at ease and we will remain with you till the last man leaves Ploche. As a good many have been complaining about our leaving this camp for California, as we intended at first, but for the kind patronage which we have received in the last four months from the people of Ploche and its vicinity, we came to the conclusion to stay here and share its fate. Our staying here will indeed be to the purchasers advantage, as our motto is, "Live and Let Live." Do not let yourselves go astray, provided you miss our place. Consequently the calamity is now over, for we will stay here to please the public. Monopoly must be wiped out so long as we are here, and be convinced of the truth. We will sell goods on the same basis as we have done herestoore. Goods sold strictly for cash and one pricets all.
